Nate Carr

Olympic medalist, Nate Carr grew up in Erie, Pennsylvania, in a family of 16 children. 5 of these, including Nate, were All-American wrestlers (an NCAA record). 2 including Nate, were Olympians. Nate's high school record was 115-7 with a Pennsylvania State title. At Iowa State he had a record of 117-20-1 with 2 Big Eight titles and 3 NCAA titles.

In 1983, Carr earned a spot on the US Freestyle World Championship team. In 1986, he won both the World Cup and the Pan-American Championships. He won the freestyle bronze medal in the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. He was on the US World Championship team in 1990 and won the Goodwill Games in Russia. Carr went on to coach at West Virginia University.

Nate Carr served as a Pastor for many years in Georgia and built a thriving ministry there while continuing to lead various wrestling clinics. Coach Carr was inducted into the National Wrestling Hall of Fame in 2003. Nate is now the Associate Director of Cyclone Regional Training Center in Ames, Iowa.
